The 1851 Crew List for the barque Chieftain, shows that Clarence and his brother Sidney were apprentices sailing under their maternal uncle, Captain Richard Edwards, on voyages to China, returning to Europe with cargoes of tea.. The Chieftain was dismantled and badly damaged in a typhoon in May 1855. Repairs were made in Hong Kong and sailed to Rotterdam, where the once record-breaking tea clipper was condemned and sold for scrap. It appears likely that Clarence and Sidney joined another ship in Hong Kong. From family sources, it is known that Clarence Barcham died in Formosa on 22 November 1856; apparently he was poisoned by a Chinese cook, and was buried there by his brother.

Sidney's career after his brother died is not known, but in 1865 he travelled as a steerage passenger aboard the South Australia from Hobsons Bay [Melbourne] to Dunedin. Sidney died of natural causes on 14 July 1882, aged 48 years, one hour after leaving Port Chalmers [Dunedin] on the SS Te Anau; his body was disembarked at Invercargill.
